

The diagram below depicts the cycle. There the red arrows represent the essential policy cycle. The blue arrows represent less central facets of the process. They indicate how the basic cycle is either modified or short-circuited occasionally. For example, the blue arrow connecting 'problem' to 'formal agenda' indicates that sometimes policymakers may work on a problem without a general concern among attentive publics about the issue.

